AROUND THE WORLD

By the Associated Press

Infant Gymnast

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Harold Dean Winters, five months old, can chin himself.

He's been doing it for three weeks on a bar in his nursery.

Generous Thief

SIOUX CITY, IA.—A "fifty-fifty" burglar appeared here.

A few days after someone broke into Nathan Levich's grocery and took $125, Levich received a bulky envelope in the mail. In it was $62.

Camouflage

NEW HARMONY, IND.—Truck drivers hauling nitroglycerine from Mattoon, Ill., into Indiana to shoot oil wells use death's own trappings to keep death away.

Behind each truck with its load or 300 or more quarts of the explosive trails an ambulance or hearse—to make motorists in the rear keep their distance. The trucks travel slowly and only by night.

"The traffic law says you mustn't pass a funeral," Driver Steve Hobbs explained. "We don't break any speed records, but it's safe."

Plastered With Names

LOGANSPORT, IND.—Even a hospital couldn't stop 18-year-old Emilou Whitehead from collecting autographs.

Her back broken in an automobile accident last Oct. 25, she was taken to the hospital and put into a plaster cast.

Her 300 visitors all have autographed the cast.

In Midst Of Plenty

KANSAS CITY—A man strode up to the cigar stand in the main postoffice lobby.

"Got a one-cent stamp?" he asked.

The clerk gulped, waved a hand at rows of stamp windows.

"Oh," the man said.

Confidentially--

SALT LAKE CITY—Police investigated a restaurant "bombing," stored their evidence at headquarters in a paper sack.

A few hours later they threw open all the windows and sealed up the evidence in a jar. It consisted of stink bomb particles.

Ye Editor's Woes

OMAHA, NEB.—Vincent Thillen, editor of the student newspaper at Creighton university, wanted a date for the Junior-Senior prom and being a bashful youth, he made known his desires in an editorial.

Thillen's plea for a companion brought a steady stream of calls from co-eds. But they weren't acceptances.

The callers protested against his using the editorial columns for dating purposes.

THE STATE OF THE NATION

by Olin Miller

A leading Hollywood hairdresser has given the beauty parlors the jitters by saying a woman can keep her hair set for three cents a day with sweetened water. One wonders if a sweetened coiffure wouldn't necessitate milady carrying a fly-swatter; if so, she could stick a short-handled one in her hair, under present deplorable styles in millinery, and pass it off for a hat.

In grandma's time a woman supported a hair-do for three cents a month. At bedtime Saturday night she curled her hair with curling irons heated over a kerosene lamp, rolled and tied the curls in paper and let them "set" overnight. The way some of our modern women look at bedtime with their hair on metal gadgets is enough to frighten a trash-wagon mule, it is true, but nothing to compare with the spectacle presented by grandma, clad in a white outing nightgown, with her hair tied up in scraps of paper. She looked like a ghost that had been frightened by a phantom.

William E. Dugan Called By Death

William Edward Dugan, age 71, former dairyman of Rushville, died rather suddenly at his home, 722 North Sexton street, at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon of a heart attack. He had been in failing health for some time but not seriously ill.

Mr. Dugan was born in Oxford, Ohio, April 13, 1867, the son of Nicholas and Margaret Dugan, the former a native of Ireland. He had been a resident of Rushville many years and operated a dairy here for some time. He was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church.

Survivors are the widow, the former Rosa McCoy; three daughters, Mrs. Marie Corrigan and Mrs. Helen Sallee of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Frances Bischoff of St. Peters, Indiana; a sister, Mrs. Ellen Copeland of Oklahoma City, Okla.; and five grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Lydia Parish, is deceased.

Last rites will be conducted from St. Mary's Catholic church Wednesday morning at nine o'clock with the Rev. Francis Schaub, pastor, in charge. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery. Friends may call at the home until the hour of the services.

Hog Thieves Take 11 From Farm Near Mays

Swine thieves struck in Rush county again Monday night and stole eleven small hogs at the farm of Lon Rhodes, northeast of Mays.

Sheriff Paul Bennington, informed of the theft Tuesday morning, went to the Rhodes farm for an investigation. The sheriff said that the eleven hogs were Poland Chinas and weighed about 90 pounds each.

It was the third Rush county hog theft in the past two weeks although the sheriff's office and state police have been striving to break up these operations.

Name Committees For Guest Night Program Feb. 28

A guest night program will be sponsored February 28 by leaders of the home economics clubs who attended the recent agricultural conference.

This decision was reached Monday at an all-day meeting of the leaders held at the home of Mrs. Chester Schroeder near New Salem.

All of the 24 leaders were present for the noon luncheon and the business meeting which followed.

Guest night program will consist of numbers by the county home economics club chorus and the stunt, "Memories," which was presented by the local women at the rural amusement contest.

A silver offering will be taken, the proceeds to aid in defraying the chorus's expenses at next year's agricultural conference.

Committees for the guest night event were named, as follows:

Program and place—Mrs. B. D. Farthing, Mrs. Forrest Moore, Mrs. Carl Higgins.

Table—Mrs. Harry Leisure, Mrs. Don Buell, Mrs. Jack Osterling, Mrs. James McKay.

Door—Mrs. Chester Schroeder, Mrs. Finley Nelson, Mrs. Maurice Browning, Mrs. Beatrice Zvonne.

Fifty Women At Homemaking Class

A series of homemaking activities was demonstrated by Rush county home economics club women at the second meeting of the adult class in the high school cafeteria Monday evening.

Fifty women attended the session.

Mrs. Lowell Gartin of Jackson township gave the detailed steps connected with the making of slip covers. Mrs. Karl Enos of Orange township displayed hooked rugs, showing the various methods employed in hooking and finishing.

Mrs. Charles Hurst, also of Orange township, made soap in the easiest possible way which required only a few minutes.

Miss Wilma Fike, home demonstration agent, did stippling with two contrasting colors on a neutral background floor covering. Mrs. Will Barlow and Mrs. Myrl Pierson of Rushville demonstrated caning by starting the weaving in one chair seat and showing the finished product in another.

Routine Business Is Before Board

Routine business was transacted at the regular meeting of the county commissioners in the court house Monday.

January reports of Hubert Alexander, auditor; Elmer Harrison, road supervisor; and Luther Renegar, infirmary superintendent, were accepted. The board also accepted bond of $5,000 provided by Supervisor Harrison.

A petition seeking to close a road in Charlottesville was received and placed on file.

The Pennsylvania railroad and the commissioners of Rush and Hancock counties were petitioned by Fay Burkher and 43 other persons to close the east railroad crossing in Charlottesville.

Petitioners further ask that the road now on the south side of the tracks be extended to the present blacktop road in order to eliminate the necessity of a school bus with children using the two crossings twice a day.

A note attached to the petition said that the present situation at Charlottesville endangers the lives of school children.

THE WEATHER

INDIANA—Mostly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; probably occasional snow in extreme north portion Wednesday; much colder Wednesday night and in west portion Wednesday.

Amlie Denies Communistic Leanings at Senate Hearing

Thomas R. Amlie (center), President Roosvelt's nominee to the Interstate Commerce Commission, denied any affiliation with the Communist party when he appeared before a Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee hearing on his nomination. Amlie said he favored government ownership of railroads. Shown with the Wisconsin Progressive at the hearing are Sen. Edward O. Johnson (left), of Colorado, and Sen. H. H. Schwartz, of Wyoming.

Spain's Bloody Civil War May Soon Be Ended

Fighting in Northern Spain Nearly Over As Beaten Loyalist Troops Pour Into France.

Perpignan, France, Feb. 7 (AP) — An end to the civil war which has paralyzed Spain and endangered the peace of Europe for thirty months appeared imminent today.

Dr. Juan Negrin, Premier of government Spain, and his last die-hard supporters were reported in diplomatic circles to be swinging around to the view that they must yield.

President Manuel Azana abandoned all appearances of clinging to his post as chief executive of the republic. After coming to France Sunday and staying a day near the frontier he went to a French retreat in Collonges, close to Geneva.

Fighting in northern Spain appeared to be over.

Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco checked the pace of his armies marching through the northeastern province of Catalonia toward the French frontier while columns of defeated government troops and refugees withdrew into France.

Negrin was still in Spain this morning, but diplomatic sources said he was bending all his efforts toward orderly evacuation of his northern troops and the escape of refugees who had not yet crossed the border.

An official Spanish report said the premier, after a brief trip into France yesterday morning, spent the afternoon inspecting

Ministerial Group Makes Appeal For Relief Of Chinese

All citizens of Rush county will be afforded an opportunity to help in the relief of suffering Chinese refugees during the next two weeks. The church committee for China relief has been constituted by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The local state committee is cooperating and Sunday, February 12th, "Good Will Sunday" has been designated as a day for special observance in all the churches who will cooperate.

The movement has the local endorsement of the Rush County Ministerial Association and the Rushville Ministerial Association. Bert L. Trabue has been chosen as treasurer and the Farmer's Trust company as the local repository for contributions of individuals and churches.

The national slogan is "Save a Million Lives a Month." The awful distress of the innocent sufferers in China makes an urgent appeal to the sympathy of Americans. Twelve dollars will save a

Federated Clubs Will Have Institute Friday

The Federated clubs of Rush county will have an institute Friday in the assembly room of the court house. All women of the county clubs are urged to be present.

Lieutenant Southerland of the Indiana state police will be the guest speaker in the afternoon and will show pictures of his department.

Departments to be emphasized will be American Citizenship, American Home, Education, Safety, Gardens and Fauntleroy Home.

Available List Of Blood Donors To Be Kept Here

As an aid to those who may need a blood transfusion in a crisis, Rush Post 150 of the American Legion will sponsor a movement to list available donors, with the information of blood type on file at the local hospitals, and with the county and city health officials and the medical society. A resolution was adopted at the regular meeting of the post Monday evening, to conform with this new activity which has been initiated by the state and national departments of the Legion.

Herschel Peters, who offered the resolution, was appointed chairman of the committee. Other members of the committee which was appointed by Commander Earl Heath are three physicians who are members of the Legion: Dr. L. M. Green, Dr. Frank Green, and Dr. C. C. Atkins.

According to the plan adopted, the committee is to ask for volunteers who are to have their blood tested, typed and counted. Donors are to receive compensation at the usual rate when the patient is able to pay, otherwise the service is to be gratis.

Often it is the case that considerable time is consumed in securing the right blood type for

House Tries To Finish Work On Defense Plans

Bill Authorizes Purchase of $300,000,000 of New Planes and Modern Army Equipment.

Washington, Feb. 7. (AP)—The House Military committee sought to wind up its work on the administration's defense legislation today and send the measure to the floor for immediate action.

The bill, embodying major portions of the $552,000,000 armament program, would authorize the purchase of $300,000,000 of new planes, the buying of additional army equipment, and the placing of $32,000,000 in "educational orders."

The latter would enable manufacturers to familiarize themselves with military needs.

Committee members, meeting at 10:30 a. m., Eastern Standard time, agreed to stay at work until they completed their recommendations. House leaders hoped to start debate Thursday.

In addition to the augmented army plane program, President Roosevelt recommended to congress yesterday that it spend an extra $6,723,000 for aviation research facilities.

The money would supplement the regular appropriation for the national advisory committee of aeronautics. The president suggested that $4,000,000 be used to build a research station at Sunnyvale, Calif., and $2,140,000 be allotted for extra equipment and facilities at Langley Field, Va.

Install New Officers For K. Of P. Last Night

New officers of the local Knights of Pythias lodge were installed in ceremonies at the lodge hall Monday night. Hartwell Coons was the installing officer.

The officers are as follows: Thomas Bishop, chancellor commander; Faber Johnson, vice chancellor; Alonzo Tuttle, prelate; Byron Bitner, master of work; Gilbert Joyce, master of exchequer; G. R. Treadway, master of finance; George W. Coons, keeper of records and seal; Roy Reddick, master of arms; Oliver Dill, inner guard; Forrest Moore, outer guard.

Theodore Abercrombie is the new trustee elected for three years. Holdover trustees are Ed Brecheisen and Flavius Hyatt.

International Furniture Factory Here To Expand; To Absorb St. Louis Unit

Carl Nyssen, New Manager Tells of Plans To Increase Production at Plant.

MAY EMPLOY 300, HE TELLS ROTARY CLUB

Increased production at the Rushville plant of the International Furniture company, and plans for further development, were divulged at the weekly luncheon session of the Rushville Rotary club Tuesday at the Lollis hotel by Carl Nyssen, new manager who recently came to Rushville to take charge of the local manufacturing enterprise.

The increase in production that has already taken place, and the plans for further increases that are in the formative stages, are due to fact that the St. Louis plant of the International is being closed, which will leave the company with three plants operating—at Pittsburgh and Chicago, in addition to Rushville.

Richard Bennett of the International company was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker.

Earl Vintage and Herman Myers of Cincinnati and Robert Leedon of Hamilton, O., were the only guests present.

Since coming to Rushville Mr. Nyssen has increased the number of employes at the local plant approximately sixty, making the total number now employed about 165, he said.

Following the eventual closing of the St. Louis plant, it is planned to bring most or all of the production to the Rushville plant, Mr. Nyssen stated. He declared that the company was confronted with the problem of being unable to run its own business, due to labor conditions; hence the abandonment of the St. Louis plant.

On account of a change in operations which speed up production, following the lines of automobile building with the conveyor system, it is hoped to raise employment at the Rushville plant to 250 or 300 persons, the local manager said. Earning power of local employes will be increased, due to increased production, he predicted.

"We are proud of the Rushville plant because it is one of the most up-to-date to be found anywhere," Mr. Nyssen asserted.

He added that an addition of 30,000 square feet to the plant was now contemplated.

In response to questions from members of the club, it was brought out that International now has twelve salesmen out of the Rushville plant, whereas they

Pendleton Men Who Sold Beans Here, Sentenced

Two young Pendleton men, arrested through a local elevator man's tip, pleaded guilty to a petit larceny charge in Madison circuit court at Anderson Monday afternoon.

Bert Pettigrew and Robert Dowden each was sentenced to serve 180 days on the state penal farm and was fined $50 and costs, according to information received by Sheriff Paul Bennington.

Both young men have served time before, the sheriff said.

Pettigrew and Dowden were charged with stealing 30 bushels of soy beans from W. A. Craig of near Pendleton. They sold the beans for $22.60 at the Orme elevator in Rushville early one morning last week.

Becoming suspicious of the transaction, elevator employes notified Sheriff Bennington who, in turn, contacted state police and the Madison county sheriff.

The two young men later were arrested and Monday pleaded guilty to the charge.

Craig, from whom the beans were stolen, was here Monday and arranged a settlement at the elevator and at the Shell Filling station, where Pettigrew and Dowden cashed the check immediately after the sale.

Local Gymnasium Stockholders In Regular Session

Annual meeting of the Rushville Athletic corporation was held at Memorial gymnasium Tuesday afternoon.

Items of business included the election of three directors and the reading of the annual financial report by L. A. Lockwood, secretary-treasurer.

Receipts during the corporation's last fiscal year, including a balance of $99.22 on February 8 of 1938, totaled $1,509.22.

Total disbursements were $1,395.71, leaving a balance of $133.51 at the beginning of the new fiscal year.

The Rushville High School Athletic association, which paid in $900 to the corporation, was the organization's best "customer." Another large receipt was $250 from Walker township, the Manilla high school using the local gymnasium for its home basketball games.

The corporation's other receipts were $25 from the Kiwanis club, $25 from the Red Men, $50 from the Rush county Republican organization, $25 from the Home Economics Bureau, $25 from the Chamber of Commerce, $50 from the Rush County Agricultural association, and $60 from the Rush county tourney.

Principal disbursement was the sum of $1,352.50 which rep-

Township Trustees To Inspect Schools

Township trustees will tour all county schools later in the month, according to a decision reached at a trustees' meeting in the office of Charles DeMunbrun, county school superintendent, Monday afternoon.

The officials will inspect the schools in the southern part of the county on Tuesday, February 14, and the remainder on Friday, February 17. Both tours will start at 9 a. m.

On February 14 the schools will be visited in this order: New Salem, Richland, Milroy, Webb, Homer, Manilla and probably Arlington.

On February 17 the trustees will start at Glenwood and will then visit Ging, Raleigh, Mays, Carthage and Jackson. If time does not permit the inspection of the Arlington school on the first day, this place will be included in the second day's itinerary.

Inspection of plants and equipment will be made by the trustees, who will be accompanied by Superintendent DeMunbrun.

Columbus to Face Lions in Memorial Gym Friday Night

Stricken Bulldogs Have Lost Eight Straight Games; County Teams In Action Friday Night

All of This Week's Basketball Games Will Be Played Within The Borders of Rush County

The hapless Columbus Bulldogs, whose eight-game losing streak may be extended in a game with Greensburg tonight, will furnish Friday evening's opposition to Rushville's Lions at Memorial gymnasium.

Columbus will entertain the Greensburg Pirates tonight in the first of two South Central conference tilts for the Bulldogs this week.

Unless they knock off Greensburg, Coach G. H. Boots' boys will bring to Rushville the unenviable distinction of failing to win a ball game since December 17 when Columbus defeated Tech in an overtime game.

One of the four teams advancing to the state finals last year, Columbus was expected to also have a great season in 1938-39. Maurice Jordan and Bill Hayworth, regulars, returned and Columbus also had a host of big substitutes.

But illness and injuries plagued the Bulldog squad all season and the Columbus team could not get going. The climax came several days ago when the five senior members of the squad turned in their suits.

Hayworth and Schumacher later returned to the fold but Jordan and a couple of lesser lights are still said to be on the outside.

Columbus has won four games this season: 44-28 over Crawfordsville, 34-30 over Washington of Indianapolis, 34-28 over Shelbyville and 40-38 over Tech.

The long Bulldog defeat list follows: 32-33 to Seymour, 28-33 to Martinsville, 18-40 to Franklin, 25-33 to New Albany, 30-31 to Greensburg, 23-34 to Central of South Bend, 14-27 to Connersville, 23-33 to North Vernon, 26-32 to Franklin, 24-47 to Shortridge, 26-32 to Southport and 32-36 to Shelbyville.

Undoubtedly, however, Columbus has possibilities and Coach Bob Hinshaw is worried for fear that the big Bulldog team will suddenly start to hit against the Lions Friday night.

Cliff Hartwell, veteran forward, has been kept inactive with a cold for the past two days while a boil on the arm is bothering Jim Haverkos.

Dana Chandler of Warsaw and Basil Hosier of Anderson will work Friday night's engagement which will be preceded by a second team contest.

A feature of this week's local basketball card is that all games will be played within the confines of the county and all will be on Friday night.

Carthage will perform at Arlington where the host team will attempt to atone for a 19-18 defeat handed the Wildcats on their appearance at Carthage.

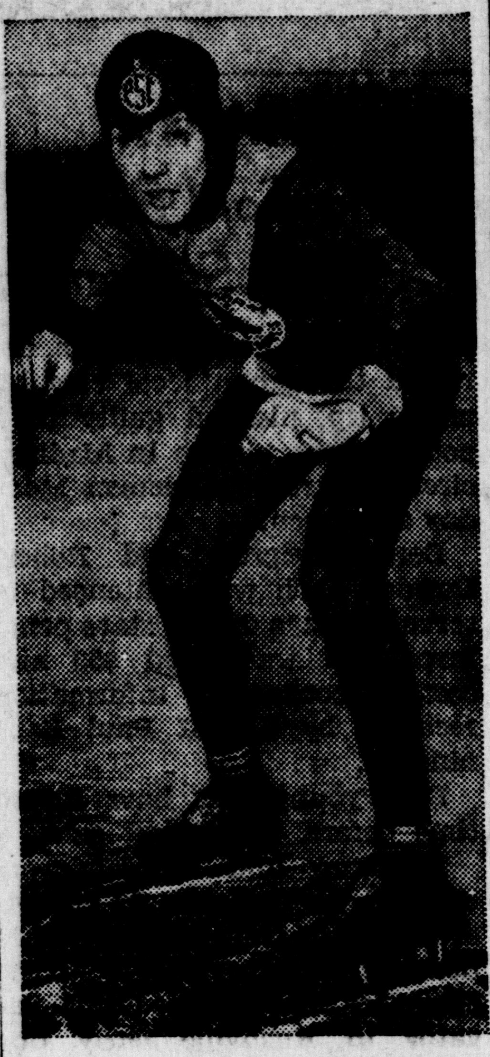
Manilla is scheduled to play at Milroy which would be the first activity for the Owls since the county tourney. Manilla was forced to postpone three games as the result of wholesale vaccinations following a smallpox scare in that community. Strangely enough, Manilla's last action was also against Milroy with the Cardinals taking a 32-15 decision in a county tournament game.

Morton Memorial, whose county champions have been hit hard by sickness, will play at New Salem in what should be another hot battle. A Liberty field goal in the last minute of play Saturday night broke a seven-game winning streak for the Morton team. New Salem and Morton have not clashed this season.

A neighborhood affair will be on tap at Mays where the Tigers will entertain Raleigh, their neighbors to the east. Raleigh posted a 30-18 win over Mays early in the season and then took a 25-15 victory in the county tourney when Mays missed 19 out of 20 free throws.

The government is offering farmers seedling trees for as little as $2 a thousand in its reforestation and land conservation program.

Skating Champion



Ken Bartholomew, of Minneapolis, won the National Outdoor Skating title at LaCrosse, Wis., with a total of 100 points. Bartholomew took third place in the five mile race, the final event of the two day meet, to nose out Leo Freisinger, of Chicago, by ten points.

Evansville, Ind., (AP) — William E. Low, a chemist, has been building a miniature four-ring circus in his attic during his spare time for the past two and a half years.

It will cover 1,350 square feet of floor space and will have 15 tents, over 400 animal reproductions, 56 wagons and 29 railroad cars when it is completed.

Coaches Of County Are Now Organized

Basketball coaches of township schools in Rush county have organized in order that mutual problems may be discussed.

At a recent organization meeting in Carthage the group elected Emerson Headlee of New Salem as president and Eugene Masters of Carthage as vice president.

Another session will be held in Rushville on Wednesday evening March 8.

Among the questions to be taken up by the Rush county coaches are the matters of six-man football and approved lists of basketball officials.

M'NUTT FOLLOWERS WILL FORM CLUB

A Rush county "McNutt-for-President" club will be organized at a meeting in the old Democratic headquarters in West Second street Thursday night at eight o'clock, it was announced.

Club officers will be elected at this time and plans made for an active campaign locally in behalf of the former governor of Indiana.

Mrs. Emory Scholl of Connersville, former state Democratic vice chairman and Tenth district chairman of the "McNutt-for-President" campaign, will be present for Thursday night's meeting and tell of plans for the drive.

INDIANA AND PURDUE WIN BIG TEN TILTS

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 6 (AP)—Indiana's high-powered cagers climbed into first place of the Big Ten basketball standing tonight with a brilliant 46 to 34 victory over Ohio State, only team that has beaten the Hoosiers this year.

Indiana turned on the heat with the opening whistle and never was headed.

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 6 (AP) — sharpshooting from the foul line helped Purdue University beat Wisconsin, 39 to 31, here tonight and move them into fifth place of the Big Ten basketball standing.

The victory gave the Boilermakers a record of two games won and two lost in loop play and made Wisconsin's score two and four.

Bill Cummings Is Seriously Injured

Indianapolis, Feb. 6 (AP)—William (Wild Bill) Cummings, 32, of near Indianapolis, winner of the 1934 Indianapolis 500-mile motor speedway race, was injured severely tonight when his passenger automobile left U. S. road 29, southeast of here, plunged through a guard rail and overturned in Lick creek.

Cummings, who sells automobils here between the big races, was en route home at the time of the accident. He was taken to a hospital, but extent of his injuries was not made known immediately. Physicians said, however, Cummings' condition "is critical."

His winning speed in the 1934 race, then a record, was 104.863 miles an hour.

SCRIBBLINGS OF "DOODLERS" ARE NOW DECIPHERED

By Lydia Gray Shaw
(AP) Feature Service Writer

New York—Two smart girls in New York are making a living out of the absent-minded scribblings of folk who fiddle with a pencil while they're thinking about something else.

Such a scribbler is a "doodler." And Dorothy Hoffman and Jane Butler say with straight faces that even the most insignificant doodle has deep psychological import.

These 24-year-old girls and their staff of 45—mostly college graduates with a yen for psychology—have a lot of fun reading doodles. They read 'em for a fee at night clubs and beauty parlors, and often are called in to entertain at private parties.

Mostly, Dorothy and Jane just sit back and supervise from their studio on 72nd street. After all, the Scribble Reading School has been going since last May, and there's plenty of administrative work to be done. Doodle-readers must be trained and doodle experts in the field—there are branches in Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Boston—must be supervised.

Definitely, the science of doodle investigation is a going concern. Dorothy, who backs up her ability at doodle-deciphering with a Sorbonne, University of Madrid, and University of Rome education, says the study is only in its infancy. She predicts an All-American future for doodle experts. Jane, a Cornell graduate, thinks likewise.

Dorothy first decided to capitalize on doodles when she was hunting up entertainment ideas for the night clubs. Before that she'd written features for "Judge," where she started the "Are You Sure?" quiz stunt. She also did a little lyric-and-music writing for some musicals.

A student at heart, she turned to Freud and Jung, and straightway announced that their interpretation of symbols helped decipher doodles. She set up a formula for reading doodles, and teaches it to her staff in a series of lectures.

Take the O-filler, who fills in O's in the headlines. The doodle-reader says he's a person of intense emotion and affection—other doodling would allow experts to read more of his character.

Scribblings of George Brent show what the girls say is visionary idealism and a dislike for conflict. He follows an adaptive rather than resistant role toward others but is quietly stubborn if opposed by force—and he prefers hunches to detached logic and forethought.

Rose Bampton's creation, they say, shows the opera singer has exceptional vitality, intensity of emotion, and a dislike for obvious display of sentimentality. She is supposed to find emotional release in creative activity and to have a deep sympathy for human weaknesses.

They found that all that has been written on handwriting symbols couldn't give them what they needed to know to understand all doodles. So they analyzed hundreds of scribble art pieces at random, then asked the doodler to tell about himself. They followed up with a statistical job on their findings—and think the whole business added a lot to their doodle-reading knowledge.

TO DISCOURAGE ANY AMERICAN FINANCING OF JAPANESE PLANTS

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP) — The administration will discourage any American investment, officials indicated today, in proposed Japanese corporations designed to develop industry, commerce and agriculture in China.

This attitude became known as the state department released correspondence dating back to 1923 which showed such a policy previously had been followed. Officials said the government's attitude remains exactly the same.

(Recently intimations came from Tokyo that the development companies being formed for the business improvement of China would be open to American and other foreign capital.)

One of the state department's old communications declared:

"In the opinion of the department it is a matter of general policy not desirable that American credit be placed at the disposal of foreign interests for investments or enterprises in third countries in cases in which the use of such American credit tend to prejudice or circumscribe the opportunities for American enterprise or to further the organization of competition therewith."

The department said its attitude was not changed by the proposal that all or a portion of the loan would be spent in the United States.

Officials said there was no doubt that the present Japanese development companies would compete with American interests in China. Notes from the state department to Japan have complained specifically of the monopolies already being exercised by such Japanese corporations.

Discouragement of American investment in such companies must be done through state department suggestion and not through any formal order. Although the companies are Japanese government inspired and controlled, they would not come under the Johnson act (forbidding loans to governments defaulting on their bond issues) because Japan has kept up her principal and interest payments.

The effect a state department suggestion might have, however, is indicated by the unanimous response that met Secretary Hull's appeal to American Airplane manufacturers not to ship airplanes to countries engaged in bombing civilian populations.

Airplane shipments to Japan have ceased.

CLARIFICATION NEEDED.

President Roosevelt's strange statement that he is not considering the slightest change in the traditional American policy of no foreign entanglements is the most amazing in the long list of amazing developments in the White House.

The president's statement is amazing because for months presidential spokesmen such as Ickes have been attacking the dictators until today there is a virtual breach of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany.

It is amazing because when it was divulged by the vigilant press that a Frenchman was injured in the crash of an army plane being tested in California, the president thought the revelation so ill-timed, etc., that he felt called upon to ask the Senate Foreign Relations committee to a conference, with all members pledged to strictest secrecy.

What happened at this conference so affected several members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee that a strong congressional movement got under way to keep the United States out of war.

Now, in the wake of the consternation caused by his conduct of the nation's foreign relations, President Roosevelt says there never was the slightest intention of deviating from the policy of strict non-entanglement in Europe.

Perhaps he is right. Perhaps Hitler and Mussolini are being used by Roosevelt to cover up the failure of his administration, and as a springboard for a third term. If so, it is the most damnable foreign policy ever engaged in by an American president.

HE NEEDN'T RETURN CALL

The protocol experts of the state department are the boys who have to figure out who goes in to dinner ahead of whom, and similar tough problems. But, once in a while, the protocol experts find relief in a higher question of international etiquette. They have just arrived at an answer to such a question; and it is a much more interesting problem than the protocol boys usually are called on to work out. Indeed, it is a precedent-setter.

The question is this: Does courtesy require President Roosevelt to return the visit which King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England are going to make in June. The protocol experts' answer is No. Here is why: 1—The visit is not being made directly to the United States, but is a sort of by-visit to the major one which the royal couple is making to Canada: 2—A king and queen have all the years of their reign to make an official visit, whereas a president has only a limited term; 3—The president combines in his position the functions of a king and a prime minister, and the prime ministerial functions necessarily keep him at his post.

The experts add that there is nothing to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from visiting the king and queen in England after he returns to private life. As gentlemen of diplomatic training,, of course, they give no hint as to when they expect that to come to pass.

SPAIN AND FRANCE

It is not without reason that the French government views with anxiety the steady progress of General Franco toward the most important of his current objectives—Barcelona. The resistance of the Loyalist armies, depleted in numbers and hard-pressed for food and supplies, seems unable to stop the fascists. After two and one-half years of valiant resistance, the end seems to be close at hand.

And when it comes, what will the results be? Insofar as the Spanish people are concerned, the future is as dismal as the past. Throughout the modern history of Spain its masses have lived on intimate terms with misery. Illiterate and impoverished, they have as a matter of tradition known only the seamy side of life. Presumably, the thread of existence in Spain will be taken up again where it was broken by the abdication of Alfonso.

The effect on Europe as a whole is certain to be momentous. General Franco is a satellite of Il Duce. If he proves to be a conqueror his triumph will have been achieved largely through the aid in men, in money and supplies received from Italy and Germany. Madrid, then, will become another link of the Berlin-Rome axis.

Along the Pyrenees frontier, accordingly, France will have a potential enemy one capable of providing an important distraction if France should become involved on the Italian or the German borders. Another step will have been taken toward fulfillment of the vital purpose of ringing France around with enemies.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

CHAPTER 18
RENE

The Air Service bus jolted into the great city. Berlin! Wide streets, heavy stone houses, poorly dressed, unsmiling people, uniforms everywhere, no flowers.

Petronella sat beside a window. The dark Latin young man who had taken upon himself the job of escorting her, pointed out things of interest, as they went. If she had been feeling less anxious, she might have enjoyed his company. He was attentive, amusing, so good looking, she thought, glancing again at him, that he was almost beautiful. His straight, thick hair was brilliantined. One lock fell across his forehead. It gave him a wild, artistic air. He was pale, with straight features, and soft dark eyes.

It was strange, thought Petronella, that nature should have given him such large, nice, ungesticulating hands. At first, when she had allowed him to get into conversation with her, she had judged him to be a professional dancer, a dress designer, or even a young man connected with the ballet. But his hands seemed to rule out these professions. His name, she had learned, was Rene Howard. He was French, on his mother's side. He had inherited everything from her, she thought, except his fists. They were" Howard." He was so charming, that she had told him her errand. But she had not admitted that Peter had done anything to merit imprisonment. Now, he said suddenly:

"Miss Mallone, lunch with me at my hotel, the Frankfurt, to talk a little. I believe I can help you, if you will." Petronella's brows lifted a fraction. She met his eyes. But he was smiling with such amusement, and laughed so infectiously at her expression, that she was compelled to laugh herself. "You need not be afraid. I have no evil designs. Please trust my good will."

"All right, I'll believe you, but I don't quite see—"

"You have not asked me what I do for my living, Miss Petronella Mallone. Now, see, I throw myself on your kindness with confession. I do nothing! I am a slacker, a sponger, a barnacle. Therefore I have plenty of time to interest myself in the affairs of other people. Some say harder things than that of me, but I would rather you did not believe them. I am the blue-eyed boy of a particularly wealthy aunt of mine. She is a lonely old woman. She travels continuously. She is exhilarating company. She is rather a gay old woman. I am to be her heir. So we travel together. Our relationship is continually misunderstood, (but I do not care. I have tried steady jobs, and I do not like work. People can think what they please. We seldom meet the sampe people, for more than a month. Except in Berlin. My aunt has an apartment in the Wilhelmstras. She knows many influential men in Germany. If anyone can help you to see your brother, she can. Since she is always threatening to write her autobiography, this gives her considerable influence." Some illusive change in Rene, while he was speaking, prompted Petrel's intuition to leap in advance of any definite evidence.

"You're being very kind, but why should you trouble? And take the risk of interesting yourself in my affairs? No one told you to travel by this plan, and help me, did they?"

He laughed a moment too late. "Whatever made you think a thing like that?"

"I don't know. Only you came and sat beside me, when we took our places in the plane. I was anxious and flustered. I wasn't looking very attractive. That other woman, in black, was much more your type. She was also sitting alone."

"She was not so young. However miserable you may be feeling, you cannot help that. Are you going to come and meet my Aunt Fleur—the Baroness Fleur von Cratz? Her apartment is. just next door to my hotel."

Baroness von Cratz

In her mind, Petronella imagined the disapproval of Peter, Martin Rowdon and James, if they could see her. But she believed Rene. She knew he meant an unsophisticated English girl like herself no harm. She could not interest him. She, herself, was unattracted by him. But she liked him.

"Yes. I'll come. I need any help I can get."

"We will call on her first thing. It might be that she would have room to put you up."

"I'd rather not do that. I must call at the Hotel Wilhelm. There may be messages for me, from my brother's paper."

"We will call there immediately afterwards."

The Baroness von Cratz was at home. She was seated at a littered desk in an immense room. The purple velvet, ivory laces, and heavy old-fashioned jewelry she was wearing matched its over-powering, dusty splendor. The Baroness had white hair, dressed in a remarkable tower of roll curls on the top of her head. Her face was large, pale, and doughy, and her eyes mild, sentimental and blue. It was at once incredible, and understandable, that she had once been beautiful. But Petrel was vaguely disappointed in her. She had expected to meet an exceptional persouality. Here, she could not help feeling, was a stupid old woman.

"Rene must take you to the Mobit Krankenhaus, as soon as you have got rid of your luggage," said this Aunt Fleur.

"They will not let her see her brother. Her first move should be to see the British Consul General," Rne told her. He spoke sharply, as if dinning facts into a thick head. "And you will invite General Furoff to have supper with us at the Adlon, tonight, Aunt Fleur?"

The Baroness looked at Rene. "Very well," she said. Almost as if, when he made her a suggestion, it was a command, thought Petrel, puzzled.

"Did you bring me the beautiful handbag you promised me, Rene?" she asked. "You did not forget?"

"No. It is in my suitcase. As you can see, by looking round this room," he said to Petrel, "my aunt is childish about beautiful things. Come along, Miss Petronella."

Fencing

Peter Mallone stood on the wrong side of iron bars, looking at the sky. The windows in this ward of the Fortress of Glatz were small, and set high in the walls. When he first entered, he had wondered what it was that made this the barest hospital ward he had ever seen. He had realized: "The walls are gray. There are no flowers." Peter was dressed in rough weave prison uniform. His right arm, which hurt him at the shoulder, with a dragging, wearying pain, was in a sling.

Outside, it was a gloriously hot early September day. But in here, despite the shafts of sunshine, it still felt cool. The walls must be very thick. It must be deadly cold in the winter. How long would they keep him here? When would he next be grilled with questions, by those angry, steel-eyed men, by the stuffed and officious Prussian officers, in the little office down the maze of stone corridors? Had they believed a word he said? Did they thing him dangerous, or harmless? He could not tell. Speaking execrable German, he had done his best to sound a fool. He had described his pleasant railway journey from Munich; his finding the admission ticket on the carriage floor, his conclusion that someone was not able to use it, and that anybody else who could, would be welcome.

"We have tickets for everything in England. But anyone can go," he had explained. But some of their questions had been awkward. Why had he thought it worth while going, since he spoke so little German? Why had he taken such interest in political affairs in Germany. He had played the enthusiastic amateur journalist as best he could, but he did not know if they believed him. It was lucky, though tantalizing, he supposed, that his arrest had preceded the chief speaker of the evening. Had that touch on his shoulder occurred half an hour later, he would certainly have been in for it. Not, he believed, that he would have learned much more than he had overheard at the bar, before the meeting started. But luckily they did not know that. If only he had not answered that fellow, who purposely asked him for a light. It was humbling, when two words of one's German gave one away. Hell, he was sick of this already. And he might be kept locked up here for weeks. Down the aisle, between the narrow beds, a man on crutches swung himself painfully towards Peter. It was the fellow prisoner who spoke such good English, who had been unjustly discharged from his factory, because of his Jewish ancestry, who had gone out and got drunk, and assaulted a storm trooper. He was coming to talk to him again. He did not look very Jewish, Peter thought. He had fair hair. The man smiled.

"You are getting restless?"

Wasn't he a little too friendly? Suddenly on his guard. Jeter listened. As though to confirm his sudden suspicion, his friend plunged back into the same welter of complaint against injustice. of half questions, with regard to the future of what he termed "his people." Questions which he appealed to Peter to answer.

Peter found himself trembling as he turned those questions back again. He wasn't feeling too steady, to start with, thanks to this shoulder, and a sleepless night. The thought of what he might have let out, had not instinct warned him, made him feel sick, trapped, jumpy.

He was still fencing when the door opened.

Petronella walked into the foom. He gave a shout of joy. She ran to him with a cry.

Letters To Editor

February 6, 1939.

Dear Editor:

It seems to me that it is about time that Rushville and Rush county people develop a little civic pride.

Especially during the winter season there seems to be a laxity of little public courtesies. For some time there has been a tendency to make a public dumping ground of the yard near the west steps of the Rush county court house. If you were to look at the spot mentioned you would find quite a collection of tobacco cans, waste paper and whiskey bottles. Not very long ago a worn out shoe was part of the scenery. There is also a large rock in the southwest lawn that doesn't seem to have any use and doesn't add to the beauty of the lawn.

Mother Nature leaves the beautification of the world to mortals during the winter months and they don't do a very good job for her. It takes very little effort to tuck waste paper, and empty containers in a pocket or purse until one reaches a recepticle for such useless articles.

Let us all learn to show a little more consideration for public property.

Sincerely,
A Lover of Beauty and Neatness.

The Rush county grand jury is expected to reports its findings tomorrow in its investigation of evidence uncovered by Pinkerton Detective Agency against Cecil Cloud in the fatal shooting of Luther Sharpe, local merchant.

Washington, D. C.—A total of 878 votes on the first ballot in the Cleveland convention were claimed today for Calvin Coolidge by his campaign managers.

Dr. Ernest D. Cofield of Indianapolis has lately purchased two Rush county farms with combined acreage of 270. The two farms adjoin and are located a short distance east of Rushville. One of them, known as the Dr. W. H. Smith farm of 112 acres was purchased for $17,750 and the other farm, formerly owned by John C. Blacklidge, is of 158 acres. Purchase price of this farm was not listed.

The two bakeries located in Main and Second streets, formerly owned and operated by Darnell and Spradling, have been purchased by Ed Darnell, one of the partners of the concern.

A running fight, in which an officer and a burglar exchanged twelve shots at an early hour Sunday morning, was the cause of no end of excitement when sleepy headed citizens awoke to ascertain the cause of the bombardment. About three o'clock, Hyman Schatz, the junkman, living on the corner of Sexton and Third streets, discovered someone in his home. Police were called and staged the gun battle but the thief escaped.

Bruce Beck, ticket agent at the I. and C. offices here, looks cross to everybody. Not figuratively, but literally. He shaves himself; that's the reason. Yesterday when he was putting the finishing touches on a scraping process his room mate bumped against his razor arm, causing said Bruce to cut two beautiful gashes dangerously close to his right eye. He dressed the injuries with court plaster.

Dr. Frank Green, Charles Worth, Dr. W. S. Coleman and Will Bowen left Saturday evening for Chicago where they will attend the automobile show.

Chase Mauzy, who underwent an operation for appendicitis recently at the Sexton hospital, was able to be on the street again.

H. Clayton Wolverton, manager of the Vaudet theatre, is in Eaton, O. this week putting on a talking picture act.

AMUSEMENTS

NOW PLAYING

PRINCESS — Melvyn Douglas and Virginia Bruce in "There's That Woman Again" with Margaret Lindsay.

"There's That Woman Again"

A Romantic Comedy-Mystery

"There's That Woman Again," referring to Melvyn Douglas' dim-witted detective spouse in "There's Always a Woman," appears at the Princess theatre today with Virginia Bruce in the role introduced by Joan Blondell. Douglas, who created the character of the wife-troubled Bill Reardon in the original romantic mystery-comedy, again plays the harassed detective.

The story opens with Melvyn Douglas, as a private detective, faced with a perplexing crime problem. Daily thefts from the exclusive Nacelle Jewelry company store have everybody—especially the insurance company —in a dither of excitement. Douglas has but one major suspect, a clerk in the store. When he is about to jail this clerk, his wife, Virginia Bruce, accepts the suspect as a client. Thus Douglas finds himself faced with the dilemma of trying to prove the clerk guilty while his madcap wife is doing rather amazing things to prove him innocent.

In the latter connection, much to the detective's disgust, his mate gets herself mixed up in a murder and in a general robbery of the store. This serves to give serious yet highly comic complications to the melange of difficulties in which Douglas has become entangled.

Margaret Lindsay plays the dangerously attractive Mrs. Nacelle with Tom Dugan the role of Flannigan, Douglas' slap-happy aide. Other members of the supporting cast include Gordon Oliver, Paul Harvey, Jonathan Hale, Stanley Ridges and Pierre Watkin.

The picture was directed by Alexander Hall who handled the successful comedy, "There's Always A Woman," which also chronicled the mad adventures of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reardon.

Reich Calls Girls To The Farm --Hopes Some Will Stay There

Berlin.—Rich or poor, pretty or no, willing or not, German girls are being mobilized. All sturdy Frauleins between 18 and 25 on March 1 must be ready for farm work.

The call to the colors for a "year of duty to the people" was made by Field Marshal Goering; Dr. Friedrich Syrup, employment chief, will enforce it.

The skirted legions will be flung into the thin ranks of Reich manpower, now straining under requirements of the military and the Four Year Plan to make Germany self-sufficient.

Authorities hope some will marry farmers. The Nazi policy seeks to build up a settled rural population, especially on frontiers—to develop a love of the land and the will to defend it.

Marriage is one cause for exemption from the ruling, physical disability another. Elder daughters of large families may serve at home. An alternative to labor service is two years as probationary nurse. Girls who served in the voluntary farm labor program in other years can do their stint in six months.

There were 130,000 girls in the voluntary program last year. Under conscription the number may reach 400,000. Pay was not mentioned in the new order; the voluntary workers got about 80 cents daily. No girl may obtain private employment unless she has served her "year of duty to the people."

Girls may choose their place of service, subject to local labor bureau approval. But they will have to go where needed most to work in field or kitchen.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband, Dora C. VanSickle who passed away suddenly, one year ago today, Feb. 7, 1938.

There is someone who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went.
I think of you daily and hourly
And try to be brave and content.
I am sad within my memory,
Lonely in my heart today,
For the one I love so dearly,
Has forever been called away.
I think of you Dora, in silence,
No eyes may see me weep,
But many silent tears are shed,
While others are asleep.
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
I little knew my grief was near.
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting, without farewell.

Sadly missed by wife, Helen and Becky. 278t1

HOUSE TRIES TO FINISH WORK ON DEFENSE PLANS

(From Page One) — versy over the sale of fighting planes to France brought a statement from Senator Nye (R., N. D.) that members of the military committee may be "forced" to give their version of what took place at a secret conference last week with President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt has called "a deliberate lie" any statement that he told the committee America's frontier was on the Rhine. He also outlined the administration's foreign policy, saying it involved no "entangling alliances."

Several committee members, contending that Mr. Roosevelt had given his version of the meeting, have suggested that he release them from their pledge of secrecy.

Nye said today he saw little chance that Mr. Roosevelt would do that. But, he added, demands for information by other senators might make it incumbent on those who attended the conference to report on it.

Senator Johnson (R., Calif.) said he thought that in view of the president's statements the committeemen "have a perfect right to speak."

Several senators said privately they would demand an account of the White House meeting from the committee members. It was learned that at least three committeemen wrote down all they could remember of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks immediately after the conference and put the material away for future reference.

There were reports that a transcript of the conference was made by a White House stenographer, but White House attaches have denied this.

Although Nye and Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) have insisted that committee members should be permitted to give their version of the White House meeting, it was apparent that Republicans would not act as a unit to back up this demand.

It was learned that Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, had been urged to call a party caucus to consider the foreign policy problem, but had decided not to do so.

Senator Capper (R., Kans.) said that while there had been conflicting reports as to what occurred in the White House meeting, he felt the president's statement last week should be regarded as final.

BLESSED EVENT

Huntington, Ind. (AP)—The birth of a baby really was a blessed event for George Garrison.

Sentenced to 60 days on the penal farm for petit larceny, Garrison was allowed to stay home until his wife had the baby she was expecting.

Garrison got to stay a month.

George Sherwood found a premium list for the event hidden in the ceiling of his farm house.

RASPY COUGHS
DUE TO COLDS
FIRST—put a small lump of Vicks VapoRub on your tongue and let it melt. The medication bathes the irritated membranes as it trickles down your throat—bringing comforting relief—where you want it—when you want it.
THEN—melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Breathe in the vapors for a few minutes. As these vapors work their way down through the air-passages, they loosen phlegm and ease the cough.

The clinic report showed 24,000 individuals have been directly contacted thus far by the project. Rushville chapter was responsible for five children being sent to Richmond clinic in December.

Pope Pius Sent To Bed; Influenza Aggravates Asthma

Vatican City, Feb. 7. (AP)—Pope Pius XI was said by a Vatican news service today to have been stricken with a mild attack of influenza which aggravated his chronic asthma and compelled him to "take all precautions."

Vatican circles said the Pontiff was running a temperature of 99.5 degrees.

This was the second time in three months that he was forced to suspend his activities because of illness, but his staff did not summon cardinals who usually call when the Pope's illness is serious.

Vatican circles said the Holy Father keenly missed the presence of his regular physician, Dr. Aminta Milani, who has attended him almost daily since he was stricken ill in 1936.

Dr. Milani himself is ill with influenza.

The Pope cancelled all scheduled audiences, but summoned Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state, for a conference in his bedroom in the early afternoon.

The Pontiff's physicians advised him to remain in his private apartments and suspend all activity.

No immediate information was available in Vatican circles as to the gravity of the attack.

The Pope was being treated by Dr. Filippo Rocchi, assistant to his regular physician.

The Pope, nearly 82, celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of his election yesterday.

He took no part in public activities but received a few intimates in his private apartments and read many telegrams of congratulations.

Supreme Court Members Need Practice To Remain In Step

By Eddy Gilmore

Washington, Feb. 7. (AP)—The nation's most dignified "ballet"—the entrance of the supreme court justices into their high-columned, plush-curtained meeting place—is getting a little out of step.

The addition of three new members in 16 months has made a difference, of course, and time and practice should polish up the performance.

This week, for the first time in nearly a year, the nine high-backed chairs behind the polished bench are full. It is the perfect time to see the "ballet."

The court clock stands at 12 noon . . . the spectators stir, and their whispering ends . . . eyes focus on the long, white draperies behind the bench . . . but nothing happens.

Seconds drag by . . . the supreme court is never late . . . at 12:02.3, the court crier rises, bangs his gavel and starts his "oyez, oyez, oyez."

The draperies part on the bearded face of the chief justice . . . behind him come Justice McReynolds and Justice Brandeis, veteran performers who don't get out of step.

Over at the left is another trio—Justices Butler, Roberts and Reed . . . Justice Reed bumps into his chair . . .

Over at the right is the other trio—Justices Stone, Black and Frankfurter . . . Justice Frankfurter comes in too close on the heels of the others.

They sit down.

The newest member, Justice Frankfurter, adjusts his glasses, tugs at his robe, bows to a friend in the room.

Justice Black rocks back, smiles, and while Justice Reed is reading from the other end of the bench, turns and says something to Justice Frankfurter.

Justice Frankfurter—who was fooling with his tie—leans over to hear. It must be funny, because they both laugh . . . and Justice Black sits back again.

The court goes on. At quitting time, Justice Frankfurter gets wedged in as he starts to leave. And as he steps down behind the curtains, he has to watch his feet.

A court attache was optimistic. "Just give 'em time," he said, "they'll get it down pat in a couple of months."

More Explosions Occur In London

London, Feb. 7 (AP)—Several violent explosions occurred today inside the grounds of the Stepney Electric Power station in East London in what police believed was a continuation of the Irish Republican army's campaign of terror.

The explosions followed yesterday's police court disclosure of the I. R. A.'s plan "S" outlining a widespread campaign of outrages in which electric plants were marked for "legitimate sabotage."

Squads of police and firemen rushed to the scene of the blasts. They apparently occurred in a manhole from which dense clouds of black smoke issued. The electricity supply for part of that section of London was cut off, but first reports indicated there were no casualties.

SPAIN'S BLOODY CIVIL WAR MAY SOON BE ENDED

government troops covering the retreat along the Ter river, which rises in the Pyrenees near the frontier.

Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, who conferred with envoys of France and Great Britain last night at Le Perthus, remained in close touch with the two powers, which were understood to be consulting Franco in return.

After the first negotiations broke down Saturday because of the Spanish government's demand for a Plebiscite, diplomatic sources said the government had modified its demands and now was asking nothing except assurances that peace would bring no reprisals and would leave Spain independent.

The negotiations were surrounded by secrecy, but diplomatic circles expressed the belief that, regardless of the outcome, a long continuance of the war appeared impossible.

Against the sombre background of the tragic exodus of thousands of Spaniards into France, a sharp change in the Spanish political situation became apparent.

Negrin, with the support of army and labor leaders, had been reported over the weekend to be determined to transfer his government to central Spain and carry on the fight in the one-fourth of the country still in the hands of the government.

Now the leaders of the once powerful U. G. T. and C. N. T. trade unions and many army officers are among the refugees who have entered France.

The disruption of the popular front organization, practical difficulties in transferring the government to the central zone and the great odds against a successful stand there were believed to be breaking down the last elements of resistance.

Hours, or perhaps days, of lingering death for the government in the north remained in prospect before the situation would finally come to a head.

Court Of Appeals Judge Quits Post As Ordered Today

New York, Feb. 7. (AP)—Judge Martin T. Manton, one of the nation's most prominent jurists, stepped down from the federal bench today after 23 years—and tomorrow he goes before a special grand jury investigating his activities.

The 58-year-old senior member of the U. S. Court of Appeals, whose resignation was made effective today by President Roosevelt, has refrained for more than a week from sitting in his usual judicial capacity.

Federal authorities said that the business affairs of Judge Manton, would be the first matter considered by the grand jury in a widespread investigation of the federal court system here.

Manton has been accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, now conducting a concurrent state inquiry of accepting $439,000 in loans from persons interested in cases before his court. In reply, the jurist denied wrongdoing but did not comment in detail on the issues raised by Dewey. No criminal charge is pending against him.

U. S. Attorney Gregory F. Noonan said U. S. District Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Connecticut also would be questioned by the jury concerning his knowledge of Judge Manton's business transactions.

Judge Thomas, who sailed Friday on a southern cruise, has radioed Noonan he would return as soon as the Liner Santa Barbara reaches Cristobal, Canal Zone, its first port. A federal subpoena, flown by air mail, is awaiting him there.

SECURITY BENEFITS WILL BE INCREASED

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Social Security Board expects to spend more than $1,000,000 more for old-age assistance in Indiana during the fiscal year starting next July 1 than it spent there during the last full fiscal year.

The board's budget figures submitted to a house appropriations sub-committee conducting hearings on the independent offices appropriation bill, listed the expenditure of $5,783,000 for old-age aid in the Hoosier state during the next fiscal year.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30 the board spent $4,045,669 in Indiana, and its grants during the first two quarters of the current year totalled $2,716,477.

For aid to dependent children in Indiana, the board's 1940 budget provides for $1,864,000, while for aid to needy blind $299,000 is requested. Dependent children grants during the 1938 fiscal year in Indiana were $1,432,192, while needy blind received $252,868.

The average yield of lint cotton per acre in the United States was 226.8 pounds in 1938 compared with 165.9 pounds in 1919.

CHANDLER SELECTED AS COMPROMISE, IS OPINION EXPRESSED

Indianapolis, Feb. 7 (AP)—Political quarters are attaching some significance to the selection of Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky as the principal speaker at the Democratic Editorial association midwinter banquet here this weekend.

Some of the Democratic editors wanted to bring a prominent New Dealer from Washington to address their meeting. Others expressed a preference for U. S. High Commissioner to the Philippines, Paul V. McNutt, who was the orator a year ago.

But a feeling existed among some on the committee that neither a Washington leader nor McNutt would bring a message of harmony to the editors. And for another reason—the midwinter meeting usually is the "coming out" party for potential candidates at the next election.

When it became apparent McNutt would not return to America in time to address the editors, the committee turned southward, a section of the country from which McNutt hopes to draw the nucleus of his 1940 national convention support.

Since McNutt is to be offered as a "middle-of-the-road" candidate for the presidential nomination, some editors said, "why not get a man who fought perhaps the most trusted Roosevelt legislative leader in Washington, Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky?"

Senator Barkley defeated Governor Chandler last summer in the Democratic primary for U. S. senator.

Two years ago, Senator Barkley was the top ranking speaker at the banquet. At that time Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Indiana senior senator, was warring with the Indiana state administration.

Certain quarters see Chandler's selection as principal speaker as a bid from the "McNutt for President" group to attempt to gain the support of the colorful southern executive. Despite his defeat, these informants point out, Chandler still has strength in Kentucky and will be an asset to the McNutt forces.

The editorial meeting undoubtedly will give the editors a chance to express their views, at least in conversation, on conditions in the Democratic party and prospects for the 1940 election.

Former Resident Of County Expires

Mrs. Laura Rebecca Newkirk Vandemant, widow of Joseph Vandemant, and former Rush county resident, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Gilson, 115 South Jefferson street, in Knightstown, at six o'clock Monday evening.

Besides the daughter she is survived by a son, Dr. Vandemant of Bloomington.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Gilson residence in Knightstown at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon and interment will take place in East Hill cemetery, Rushville.

Buckwheat production in the United States dropped from an annual 1927-36 average of 8,569,000 bushels to 6,682,000 bushels in 1938.

AMLIE APPEARS BEFORE SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE

Washington, Feb. 7. (AP)—Two presidential appointments which have aroused furious controversies reached new stages of senatorial argument today, with prospects of at least one rebuff to the administration.

A senate subcommittee called for Rep. Thomas R. Amlie of Wisconsin before it (at 10:30 a. m. EST) to inquire about his qualifications for membership on the Interstate Commerce Commission, to which President Roosevelt nominated him.

Committeemen were interested in learning whether Amlie's economic views are as "radical" as some of his critics have alleged.

Until after the hearings, which may last two days, senators were chary of predicting whether he would be confirmed.

Most members were outspoken, however, in declaring that the senate would follow its judiciary committee in rejecting the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia. A vote was expected during the afternoon.

Roberts was opposed by Senators Byrd and Glass, Virginia Democrats. They called the appointment personally objectionable to them because they had been asked to submit candidates, who subsequently were rejected in Roberts' favor.

Some of Roberts' senatorial opponents claimed as high as 80 votes against his confirmation. Even staunch administration supporters said they could recall no previous instance in which a nominee had been confirmed over the opposition of both senators from his state.

Amlie's appointment has been under fire by some senators because, while a member of the house, he proposed a constitutional amendment to give the government wide powers over business industry.

A member of the Progressive party, the 41-year old Amlie gave up his house seat last year when he unsuccessfully sought nomination to the senate. After his appointment to the ICC, the Wisconsin legislature adopted a resolution of protest, declaring he was a Communist. The Communist party in Wisconsin denied the assertion as did Amlie's friends.

There was senatorial arguments, too, over a third presidential appointment—that of Dean Charles E. Clark of Yale law school to be a federal circuit judge.

Senator Austin (R-Vt) raised the question whether Clark thought the government should be transformed from a "federal system with limited power to a national system in which the nation becomes a great reservoir of of authority."

Austin said the nominee "may be unfit to be on the court" if he holds this and other views which, the senator declares, his writings intimated. Senator King (D-Utah), who like Austin is on the subcommittee investigating the appointment, said he would be disposed to vote against Clark.
